Credit Suisse Group announces a change to its accounting treatment of share-based compensation awards

Zurich, February 13, 2006 Credit Suisse Group today announced a change to its accounting treatment of certain share-based compensation awards. This follows recent guidance and discussions with US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) staff through February 10, 2006, regarding the appropriate period over which to expense share-based compensation awards that have a non-competition provision with scheduled vesting beyond an employee's eligibility for early retirement. As a result, the Group will record a non-cash charge in the fourth quarter of 2005 for certain share-based compensation awards granted in 2005. This will result in a CHF 630 million increase in banking compensation and benefits and a CHF 421 million reduction in net income for the fourth quarter and full year 2005. This non-cash charge represents an acceleration of compensation expenses that would otherwise have been reflected in future years.

Credit Suisse Group adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 123 (Revised 2004), Share-Based Payment (SFAS 123R) as of January 1, 2005. Following the early adoption of the revised standard by the Group, further guidance on SFAS 123R was provided by SEC staff in December 2005. SEC staff noted that these share-based awards should generally be expensed over the period from the grant date to the date on which the employee becomes eligible for early retirement rather than over the entire vesting or stated service period.

Based on a review of the relevant share-based compensation awards granted during 2005, the Group had previously concluded that the most appropriate service period to be used for the expensing of these awards was the vesting period, which ranges from three to five years. However, as a result of the December 2005 guidance and subsequent discussions with SEC staff, the Group will now record an incremental expense in the fourth quarter of 2005 to reflect the recognition of expenses over the shorter period from the award grant date until the employee becomes eligible for early retirement with respect to the awards granted in 2005. The non-cash charge represents an acceleration of compensation expenses that would otherwise have been reflected in future years and does not impact cash flows.

As a result of this change in accounting treatment, the Group's fourth-quarter and full-year 2005 banking compensation and benefits will increase by CHF 630 million and its fourth-quarter and full-year 2005 net income will decrease by CHF 421 million.

Edgar Filing: CREDIT SUISSE GROUP - Form 6-K

Credit Suisse Group will publish its results for the fourth quarter and full year 2005 on February 15, 2006, as scheduled.

Cautionary Statement Regarding Forward-Looking Information

This press release contains statements that constitute forward-looking statements. In addition, in the future we, and others on our behalf, may make statements that constitute forward-looking statements. Such forward-looking statements may include, without limitation, statements relating to our plans, objectives or goals; our future economic performance or prospects; the potential effect on our future performance of certain contingencies; and assumptions underlying any such statements. Words such as believes, anticipates, expects, intends and plans and similar expressions are intended to identify forward-looking statements but are not the exclusive means of identifying such statements. We do not intend to update these forward-looking statements except as may be required by applicable laws. By their very nature, forward-looking statements involve inherent risks and uncertainties, both general and specific, and risks exist that predictions, forecasts, projections and other outcomes described or implied in forward-looking statements will not be achieved. We caution you that a number of important factors could cause results to differ materially from the plans, objectives, expectations, estimates and intentions expressed in such forward-looking statements. These factors include (i) market and interest rate fluctuations; (ii) the strength of the global economy in general and the strength of the economies of the countries in which we conduct our operations in particular; (iii) the ability of counterparties to meet their obligations to us; (iv) the effects of, and changes in, fiscal, monetary, trade and tax policies, and currency fluctuations; (v) political and social developments, including war, civil unrest or terrorist activity; (vi) the possibility of foreign exchange controls, expropriation, nationalization or confiscation of assets in countries in which we conduct our operations; (vii) the ability to maintain sufficient liquidity and access capital markets; (viii) operational factors such as systems failure, human error, or the failure to properly implement procedures; (ix) actions taken by regulators with respect to our business and practices in one or more of the countries in which we conduct our operations; (x) the effects of changes in laws, regulations or accounting policies or practices; (xi) competition in geographic and business areas in which we conduct our operations; (xii) the ability to retain and recruit qualified personnel; (xiii) the ability to maintain our reputation and promote our brands; (xiv) the ability to increase market share and control expenses; (xv) technological changes; (xvi) the timely development and acceptance of our new products and services and the perceived overall value of these products and services by users; (xvii) acquisitions, including the ability to integrate successfully acquired businesses; (xviii) the adverse resolution of litigation and other contingencies; and (xix) our success at managing the risks involved in the foregoing. We caution you that the foregoing list of important factors is not exclusive; when evaluating forward-looking statements, you should carefully consider the foregoing factors and other uncertainties and events, as well as the risks identified in our most recently filed Form 20-F and reports on Form 6-K furnished to the US Securities and Exchange Commission.
