GOL LINHAS AÉREAS INTELIGENTES S.A.NOTES TO THE PRO FORMA CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

December 31, 2005 and 2004

(In thousands of reais)

1. Rewording of the financial statements as of December 31,2004

According to the Brazilian Securities Commission (CVM) deliberation, in compliance with the Official letter/CVM/SEP/GEA-I/ # 098/2006, from March 06, 2006, the financial statements ended on December 31, 2004 were reworded to reflect in the work of that fiscal year, the expenses with sources captation to acquire new aircrafts at R$27,401, previously classified as prepaid expenses. The Company had adopted this procedure since it can clearly join source captation expenses to its future growth expansion project including the acquisition of build-up aircrafts. As this captation will produce future benefits represented by the financial revenues created by the cash during the build-up aircrafts ordered to the suppliers until the agreement payment date, the Company had registered such captation expenses in assets as prepaid expenses to be amortized as the benefits were paid. CVM assumed by the Brazilian standard, that such costs must be fully accounted as expenses in the fiscal year. The amendments effects were the decrease in total assets as well as in shareholders equity as of December 31, 2004, and the decrease in 2004 results which totaled R$15,680. In addition to date, Note 9 was reworded, im compliance to CVM s decision, in order to expand the disclosure on contingencies which loss porssibilities were considered remote.

r) Derivatives

In order to protect a part of the Company's exposure from variations of foreign exchange rates and from the increase in fuel prices, the Company uses oil and foreign exchange financial derivative instruments. Those instruments are mainly futures, options, collars and swaps.

As there is not a future market for aircraft fuel in Brazil, the Company uses international derivatives to manage its exposure to increases in fuel price. There is a high correlation between international oil prices and aircraft fuel in Brazil, making oil derivatives effective in the compensation of variations in aircraft fuel prices and serving as a short-term protection against strong increases in the average aircraft fuel price.

The Company measures the effectiveness of derivatives in relation to variations in the hedged assets prices. As most of the Company's fuel derivatives is not traded on stock exchanges, the Company estimates their fair values. The fair value of derivative instruments, depending on the type, is determined based on evaluation methods of present value and option appreciation models that use assumptions on the market price of commodities. Furthermore, as there is not a reliable futures market for aircraft fuel, Management estimates aircraft fuel future prices to measure the effectiveness of derivatives to offset variations in prices.

Aiming to record, demonstrate and disclose transactions with financial derivative instruments carried out by the Company and its subsidiaries, based on their formal risk management policies, the Company started, as of January 2005, to measure the effectiveness of financial derivative instruments used with the specific purpose of market risk coverage based on their fair values, and to recognize the non effective portion of realized results of the transactions with financial derivative instruments directly in the financial result for the year, as the effective portion of realized results is recognized by means of adjusting revenues and expenses related to the items, covered. Unrealized results, or the variation of the market fair value are recognized in the shareholders' equity.

r) Derivatives Continued

The accounting policy for effectiveness measurement of derivative instruments was defined based on the Company's risk management policy that considers effective instruments which offset between 80% and 120% of the change in the price of the item to which protection was contracted.

The market value of financial derivative instruments is calculated based on usual market practices, using closing amounts in the period and material underlying quotations, except for option contracts, whose values are determined by means of the adoption of a pricing methodology (Black & Scholes), and the variables and information related to volatility ratios are obtained by means of acknowledged market information providers.

The accounting practices adopted in Brazil differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States USGAAP applicable to the air transport segment, especially the allocation of maintenance expenses to income. On December 31, 2005, the net income for the period, in accordance with accounting practices adopted in Brazil (BRGAAP), was R$ 88,729 lower (R$ 82,910 on December 31, 2004) due to this difference and the respective tax effects in comparison with net income under USGAAP. At the same date, shareholder's equity presented in the Company's financial statements as per Brazilian Corporation Law was R$ 249,416 lower due to, mainly, the accumulated difference in the allocation of maintenance expenses and respective tax effects, also as the result of the accrual in USGAAP financial statements of net proceeds received through issuing shares and accounting for stock options granted to executives and employees. There are also differences in the classification of assets, liabilities and income items. The Company discloses significant information on transactions in a consistent way in the corporate financial statements as per Brazilian Corporation Law and in accordance with USGAAP.

9. Provision for Contingencies

The Company takes part in legal proceedings and civil and labor claims that arise in the ordinary course of business. Although the results of those proceedings cannot be forecasted, the final judgment of those actions will not have a relevant side effect in the Company's financial position, operating income and cash flow, according to management's opinion which is supported by its external legal advisors.

In order to demonstrate a better current estimate, the provisions constituted for probable losses are classified in non-current liabilities and are reviewed periodically based on the proceedings evolution and on the background of losses in favor of labor and civil claims.

The Company is judicially discussing several aspects regarding the assessment and calculation basis of PIS and COFINS on its operations. In 2005, the Company made judicial deposits in the amount of R$ 23,723 and the related provisions regarding legal obligations totaled R$ 18,794.

The Company is questioning in court the non-assessment of VAT (ICMS) in aircraft and engine imports under operating leasing in transactions made with lessors headquartered in foreign countries. The Company's Management understands that these transactions are mere leases in view of the contractual obligation to return the object of the contract, which will never integrate the Company's assets, neither now nor in the future. Given that there is no circulation of goods, the tax triggering event is not characterized.

On December 31, there were 29 judicial petitions in court and another 7 judicial petitions in lower court. Estimated aggregated value of the current lawsuits - based on the 4% rate applied to the price of the lease aircraft and engines and taking these assets' estimated useful life over the average period of the Company's commercial leases - totals R$45,000 in 2005 (R$34,000 in 2004), monetarily adjusted and excluding eventual default fees.

The Company, supported by case law and the opinion of its independent legal advisors, understands that it is unlikely for the Company to lose these court suits and the accounting practices adopted in the preparation of its financial statements, in line with international standards, do not require provisions for losses.

The accounting practices adopted in Brazil do not require recognition of compensation expenses through the Company's stock options. If the Company had recorded in its results the compensation expenses by means of stock options, based on the intrinsic value on the date of the options granting, the income would have been R$ 8,126 lower (R$10,058 in 2004).

17. Financial derivative Instruments

The Company is exposed to several market risks arising from its operations. Such risks involve mainly the effects of changes in fuel price and foreign exchange rate risk, as its revenues are generated in reais and the Company has significant commitments in US dollars, credit risks and interest rate risks. The Company uses financial derivative instruments to minimize those risks. The Company maintains a formal risk management policy under the management of its executive officers, its Risk Policy Committee and its Board of Directors.

The management of those risks is performed through control policies, establishing limits, as well as other monitoring techniques, mainly mathematical models adopted for the continuous monitoring of exposures. The exclusive investment funds in which the Company and its Subsidiary Gol are quotaholders are used as means for the risk coverage contracting according to the Company's risk management policies.

16. Financial derivative Instruments Continueda) Fuel price risk and availability

Airline companies are exposed to aircraft fuel price change effects. Aircraft fuel consumption in 2005 and 2004 represented approximately 37.4% and 31.4%, respectively, of the Company's operating expenses. The Company periodically uses future contracts, swaps and oil options and its derivatives to manage those risks. Fuel hedges go towards fuel acquisition operating expenses. As the aircraft fuel is not traded on a commodities exchange, the liquidity and alternatives for contracting hedge operations of that item are limited. However, the Company has found effective commodities to hedge aircraft fuel costs, mainly crude oil. Historically, oil prices are highly related to aircraft fuel prices, which makes oil derivatives effective in compensating oil price fluctuations, in order to provide short-term protection against sudden fuel price increases. The future contracts are listed on NYMEX, swaps are contracted with first class international banks and the options can either be those listed on NYMEX or those traded with first class international banks.

The Company's derivatives contracts, on December 31, 2005, are summarized as follows (in thousand, except when indicated):

	2005	2004

The Company used financial derivatives for short and long terms and keeps its positions for future months. On December 31, 2005 the Company holds a combination of call options, collar structures and swaps to hedge approximately 30% of its aircraft fuel consumption in 2006 at average oil prices equivalent to US$ 59.90 per barrel, approximately.

The Company classifies fuel hedge as cash flow hedge, and recognizes the changes of market fair value of effective hedges accounted in the shareholders' equity until the hedged fuel is consumed. On December 31, 2005, gains recorded in Accumulated other comprehensive income totaled R$ 5.586, net of taxes. Ineffective hedges arise when the changes in the value of derivatives is not between 80% and 120% of the hedged fuel value variation. As periodic changes in the derivative fair value are ineffective, such ineffectiveness is recognized in the same period as the estimated fuel consumption occurs. The effective hedge results are recorded as fuel acquisition cost reduction or increase, and the hedge results that are not effective are recognized as financial revenue or expense. When the aircraft fuel is consumed and the related financial derivative instrument is settled, the gains or losses registered on shareholders' equity are recognized as aircraft fuel expenses. The fuel hedge effectiveness is estimated based on correlation statistical methods or by the proportion of fuel purchase expense variations that are offset by the fair market value variation of derivatives.

The fair market value of swaps is estimated by discounted cash flow methods, and the fair value of the options is estimated by the Black-Scholes model adapted to commodities options.

b) Exchange rate risk

On December 31, 2005 the main assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency are related to aircraft leasing and acquisition operations.

Company's Management believes that the derivatives it uses are extremely correlated to the US dollar/real foreign exchange rate in order to provide short-term protection to foreign exchange rate changes. The Company classifies the US dollar hedge as cash flow hedge and recognizes the fair market value variations of highly effective hedges in the same period the estimated expenses which are the purpose of the hedge occur. The market value changes of the highly effective hedges are recorded in Financial Revenues or Expenses until the period the hedged item is recognized, then they are recognized as decrease or increase in incurred expenses. The market value changes of hedges that are not highly effective are recognized as financial revenue or expense. The US dollar hedge effectiveness is estimated by statistical correlation methods or by the proportion of expenses variation that are offset by the fair market value variation of the derivatives.

The fair market value of swaps is estimated by discounted cash flow methods; the fair value of options is estimated by the Black-Scholes method adapted to the currency options; and the futures fair value refers to the last owed or receivable adjustment already accounted and not settled yet.

The Company uses short-term financial derivative instruments. The following table summarizes the position of the foreign exchange derivative contracts (in thousands, except otherwise indicated):

The Company accounts its futures derivative instruments of foreign currencies as cash flow hedges. On December 31, 2005, gains in Accumulated other comprehensive income totaled R$ 825, net of taxes.

c) Credit risk of financial derivative instruments

The financial derivative instruments used by the Company are conducted with top quality credit counterparts, AA+ or better rated international banks, according to Moody's and Fitch agencies or international futures exchange or the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F). The Company believes that the risk of not receiving the owed amount by its counterparts in the derivatives operations is not material.

d) Interest rate risk

The Company's results are affected by changes in international interest rates in US dollar due to the impact of such changes in interest expenses of operating lease agreements. On December 31, 2005, there were no open hedge contracts for the international interest rate risk. During 2005, international interest rates hedge operations were not carried out.

The Company's results are affected by changes in the interest rates in Brazil, both those applicable to deposits and liabilities in real and those applicable to US dollar indexed securities, due to the impact of such changes on the market value of financial derivative instruments conducted in Brazil, on the market value of prefixed securities in real and on the remuneration of the cash balance and financial investments. The Company uses Interbank Deposit futures of the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) solely to protect itself from domestic interest rate impacts on the prefixed portion of its investments. On December 31, 2005, the nominal value of Interbank Deposit futures contracts with the Brazilian Mercantile and Futures Exchange (BM&F) totaled R$ 238,381 with periods of up to 18 months, with a fair market value of R$ (38), corresponding to the last owed or receivable adjustment, already received and not yet settled. The total variations in market value, payments and receivables related to the DI futures are recognized as increase or decrease in financial incomes in the same period they occur.

18. Insurance Coverage

Management holds an insurance coverage in amounts that it deems necessary to cover possible accidents, due to the nature of its assets and the risks inherent to its activity, observing the limits established in lease agreements. On December 31, 2005 the insurance coverage, by nature, considering GOL's aircraft fleet and in relation to the maximum indemnifiable amounts, is the following:

Aeronautic Type	R$	US$
Warranty Hull	2,715,992	1,160,333
Civil Liability per occurrence/aircraft	1,404,420	600,000
Warranty Hull/War	2,715,992	1,160,333
Inventories	327,355	139,854

By means of Law 10,605, as of December 18, 2002, the Brazilian government undertook to supplement any civil liability expenses against third parties caused by acts of war or terrorist attacks, occurred in Brazil or abroad, for which GOL may be demanded, for the amounts that exceed the insurance policy limit effective on September 10, 2001, limited to the equivalent in reais to one billion US dollar.
