Item 8.01. Other Events.

On September 5, 2008, a purported class action lawsuit was filed against Synchronoss Technologies, Inc. (the Company ) in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. Stephen G. Waldis, a director and officer of the Company, and Lawrence R. Irving, an officer of the Company, also were named as defendants. Although the Company and the individual defendants have not been served with the complaint, the lawsuit was filed allegedly on behalf of persons who purchased the Company's common stock during the period beginning on February 4, 2008 and ending on June 9, 2008. The complaint alleges violations of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 primarily based on statements concerning the Company's financial and business prospects relating to activation of Apple's iPhone product.

Although neither the Company nor the individual defendants have been served or filed answers in this matter, the Company and the individual defendants believe that the claims asserted in the lawsuit are without merit and that they have meritorious defenses to the claims made in the complaint. The Company and the individual defendants intend to contest the lawsuit vigorously.
