ITEM 1.01 Entry into a Material Definitive Agreement.

Settlement and Patent License Agreement

On September 21, 2012, TiVo Inc. ("TiVo") and Verizon Communications Inc. ("Verizon") entered into a Settlement and Patent License Agreement (the "Agreement"), pursuant to which the parties have agreed to: settle and dismiss with prejudice all outstanding litigation between them (as described in TiVo's periodic reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "Commission")); provide each party with a license to certain patents owned by the other party; and release all infringement claims between the parties with respect to such licensed patents.

Under the Agreement, Verizon will provide TiVo total compensation worth at least $250.4 million. The payments will consist of an upfront cash payment of $100,000,000 due on or before September 28, 2012 and twenty-five recurring payments due to TiVo 30 days after the end of each calendar quarter in the amount of $6,016,000 through September 30, 2018.

As part of the Agreement, Verizon may earn a credit of up to $29.4 million if Verizon agrees to pursue a specified commercial services arrangement with TiVo prior to December 21, 2012, which may reduce up to twenty-two of the quarterly cash payments to $4,679,636. In addition to the $250.4 million in compensation, TiVo will also receive incremental monthly fees at a higher rate than the rate implied by the guaranteed fees per Verizon DVR subscriber if the growth of Verizon's DVR subscriber base exceeds certain pre-determined levels. Any incremental additional per subscriber fees are due to TiVo 30 days after the end of each calendar quarter in which they are accrued.

Pursuant to the Agreement, TiVo granted Verizon a license under its advanced television patents, including the patents that TiVo had asserted against Verizon (U.S. Patent Nos. 6,233,389, 7,493,015 and 7,529,465), to make, have made, use, sell, offer to sell and import advanced television technology in connection with multichannel video programming services of Verizon (including the Verizon FiOS TV pay television service) and video services of the joint venture between Verizon and Redbox Automated Retail, LLC, subject to certain limitations and exclusions.

Verizon granted TiVo a license under its advanced television patents to make, have made, use, sell, offer to sell and import advanced television technology in connection with TiVo products and services, including products and services provided to other multichannel video programming service providers, subject to certain limitations and exclusions.

The Agreement expires on July 31, 2018. In addition, TiVo may terminate the rights and licenses granted to Verizon pursuant to the Agreement under certain circumstances, including but not limited to if Verizon has failed to make timely payment. As in the past, TiVo expects that the timing of its revenue recognition for the payments under the agreement will differ from its receipt of cash payments. Additionally, during its current fiscal quarter, TiVo expects that it will recognize some portion of the $100,000,000 initial payment as consideration for past damages and will recognize the remainder of the upfront payment and the ongoing payments as revenue in its financial statements.

The foregoing description of the Agreement is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the Agreement which will be filed with the Commission as an exhibit to the Company's Form 10-Q for the quarter ending October 31, 2012 and is incorporated by reference herein. TiVo intends to seek confidential treatment of certain terms of the Agreement in connection with its filing in accordance with the procedures of the Commission.

This current report contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These statements relate to, among other things, the amount of future payments TiVo expects to receive in connection with its settlement of its patent litigation with Verizon and TiVo's expectations that its revenue recognition for the settlement payments will differ from its receipt of cash payments including recognition of a portion of the upfront payment as consideration for past damages. Forward-looking statements generally can be identified by the use of forward-looking terminology such as, "believe," "expect," "may," "will," "intend," "estimate," "continue," or similar expressions or the negative of those terms or expressions. Such statements involve risks and uncertainties, which could cause actual results to vary materially from those expressed in or indicated by the forward-looking statements. Factors that may cause actual results to differ materially include delays in development, competitive
