National Australia Bank statement on Northern B	ank
A theft has occurred at Northern Bank in Belfast, a wholly-owned subsidiary of National Australia Bank.
The theft is being investigated by the police in Northern Ireland and we cannot discuss details at this stage.
However, initial indications are that affected staff are safe this is our number one priority.
Business continuity plans have been activated and it is business-as-usual for customers of Northern Bank.
The National has advised Danske Bank Group of the incident.

Melbourne, Wednesday 22 December 2004
National Australia Bank statement on theft at Northern Bank
Approximately £20 million was stolen from Northern Bank in Belfast on Monday evening, 20 December 2004.
The theft is covered by self-insurance, and as such, National Australia Bank, which currently owns Northern Bank, will bear the impact of an losses arising from the theft.
The incident is not expected to have any material impact on the sale of Northern Bank and National Irish Bank to the Danske Bank Group announced on 14 December 2004.
Customer services at Northern Bank have been maintained following the successful implementation of business continuity plans.
Most importantly, all staff involved in the theft are safe and are receiving appropriate care and support by Northern Bank and the police in Northern Ireland.
Northern Bank is fully co-operating with the police in Northern Ireland in their investigation into the theft.
