Glass Lewis Recommends Rubicon Shareholders Vote FOR Paragon Directors Gad and Jacobs Citing Rubicon's Poor Corporate Governance and Financial Performance

ATLANTA, GA – June 14, 2016 – Leading proxy advisory firm Glass Lewis has recommended that Rubicon shareholders vote FOR the election of Messrs. Hesham Gad and Jack Jacobs on the BLUE proxy card noting the credibility of Paragon's plan to create tangible shareholder value for shareholders:

“[Mr. Gad] has articulated a number of potential strategic actions that would appear to offer some potential upside for shareholders, in our view, including shuttering underperforming segments of the business and seeking to monetize real estate and machinery not utilized in the profitable segments of the Company's business.”

In its evaluation, Glass Lewis notes that they are very hesitant to recommend the removal of incumbent directors, however, after an unbiased look at the all the facts Glass Lewis made its recommendation for Messrs. Gad and Jacobs by noting the following (emphasis added):

“Having thoroughly evaluated the Dissident's arguments, we believe the Dissident makes a compelling case that the Company's financial performance has been very poor and that its business is in disarray.”

“We agree that the incumbent board and management bear primary responsibility for the current state of the Company and that they have failed to articulate a credible path to creating shareholder value. In addition, the Company's classified board structure and long average director tenure suggest the board is entrenched and could likely benefit from additional fresh perspective, in our view.”

“We find that Rubicon's total shareholder return performance was very poor over every period reviewed, including on an absolute basis and relative to all three benchmark indices used in our analysis.”

“...we find that the Company's total shareholder return has been similarly poor under Mr. Weissman's tenure as CEO of the Company.”

Regarding Rubicon's sudden desire to focus on shareholder value, Glass Lewis notes:

“The Company states that it has been exploring opportunities to improve the business and is executing on several favorable opportunities, however, we are inclined to judge the merit of this strategy on the Company's reported business performance and share price performance, both of which have been indefensibly poor.”

Citing Rubicon's poor corporate governance, Glass Lewis notes:

"With respect to corporate governance, we agree with the Dissident that the Company's classified board structure runs contrary to corporate governance best practice and that shareholders and the Company would benefit by electing all directors annually."

We believe, it's time to put an end to the Rubicon status quo that put the interest of insiders ahead of shareholders which has led to significant and permanent shareholder loss.

We believe the Board has continued its self-serving behavior by appointing a questionable director with a lumpy track record less than four weeks before its annual meeting.

We believe shareholders deserve an accountable Board where every single director is elected every single year as an indication of corporate governance best practices.

We believe that the plan that Paragon has put forth, offers the most compelling and tangible opportunity for long-term shareholder value creation.

If you are concerned about the $150 million of losses at Rubicon during the past four years and what we believe is the poor track record of corporate governance and board performance at Rubicon, and would like to hear more about Paragon's plans for the company, we urge you to contact us.
