RE: Company Name
Allergan for Global Brands Business; Actavis for Global Generics Business

I am pleased to inform you that this morning, Actavis announced the intention to adopt the Allergan name as the new corporate name for the combined company following the close of the Actavis acquisition of Allergan. The Allergan name will also continue to be used to market the branded pharmaceutical products, while the Actavis name will be retained for select geographic regions and product portfolios. The new Allergan will operate as one company, led by an industry-leading senior management team responsible for the entire corporation, and united under one corporate vision, mission and culture.

The new corporate name is subject to shareholder approval at the Actavis Annual General Meeting later this spring. If approved, the company will then initiate a detailed rebranding program for the businesses around the world.

The success of Allergan has been based on a commitment to R&D, launching innovative new products, creating new markets, and providing the highest level of support and service to our physician customers and their patients. It is also based on the dedication and focus of our employees who have worked tirelessly to ensure that we have continued to exceed the expectations of our customers and deliver against our financial commitments, even under the most challenging circumstances. The decision to adopt Allergan as the name of the new parent company, as well as maintain the Allergan name for the branded pharmaceuticals business, is a direct reflection of those efforts and reinforces the significance of the Allergan name to physicians who have relied on our company, our employees and our products for the past 65 years.

Just as the Allergan name has been a trusted corporate brand, the Actavis name has come to signify the transformation of that company into a leader in global generic, branded generic and OTC pharmaceuticals.

Retaining the Actavis name reflects this heritage, as well as its considerable equity with the Actavis customer base in key markets around the world.

Corporate names represent more than heritage. They speak to the future strategic vision of an organization. As we have said since the announcement of the proposed combination of our two companies in November, together Actavis and Allergan will create a dynamic new breed of company – a leader in Growth Pharma. By adopting the Allergan name for the parent company, we will ensure that our corporate identity reflects the dramatic evolution of the company within the pharmaceutical industry. Together, the combined company will be equally focused on developing new medicines that meet unmet medical needs in critical therapeutic categories, as well as increasing global access to medicines through our leadership in the generics industry. For customers, patients, employees and investors, this combination of our two powerful, successful and growing companies is transformational.

Thank you for all that you have done to contribute to the great heritage of our company and all that you are continuing to do as we work through the integration process to create the most dynamic growth pharmaceutical company in global healthcare.
