Compensation Discussion and Analysis

Preliminary Note

Pursuant to applicable SEC regulations, the information presented in this section relates to the chief executive officer, the chief financial officer, and the one additional most highly compensated executive officer (as this term is defined in the regulations promulgated under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended). The Company believes that in fiscal year 2018, three individuals met these criteria, as follows (these individuals are referred to throughout this Compensation Discussion and Analysis as named executive officers):

Nader Z. Pourhassan, Ph.D., the Company's President and Chief Executive Officer;

Michael D. Mulholland, the Company's Chief Financial Officer; and

Anthony D. Caracciolo, the Company's Chairman of the Board.

As disclosed elsewhere in this Amendment, effective July 11, 2018, Mr. Caracciolo resigned as Executive Chairman of the Company, which was is an executive officer position, and continues to serve as a Board member and the non-executive Chairman of the Board.

Introduction

In this section, the Company presents the principles underlying its named executive officer compensation decisions and the most important factors that the Company believes are relevant to an analysis of these decisions. The goal is to provide qualitative information regarding the manner and context in which compensation is awarded to and earned by the named executive officers and to place in perspective the numerical and other quantitative data presented in the tables and other information that follow this section.

The Company has designed the compensation of its named executive officers in order to attract, as needed, individuals with the skills necessary for the Company to achieve its business plan, to reward those individuals fairly over time, and to retain those individuals who perform at or above expectations.

The Company's named executive officers' annual cash and stock compensation consists of several components, as follows:

base salary;

annual incentive compensation paid upon satisfaction of certain performance objectives; and

grants of incentive stock options, where the incentive stock options vest over a period of time or pursuant to the attainment of set performance goals and unvested stock options are forfeited to the Company should the executive officer's employment be terminated, provided that certain grants of incentive stock options provide for accelerated vesting under certain circumstances.

The Compensation Committee reviews the compensation, both cash and stock, of the named executive officers on an annual basis, while taking into account changes in compensation during previous years.

Some of these components, such as base salary, are generally fixed and do not vary based on the Company's financial and other performance; some components, such as annual cash incentive compensation, are in part dependent upon the achievement of certain individual performance and corporate performance objectives jointly agreed upon by the Company's management and the Compensation Committee; and some components, such as incentive stock option awards, have a value that is dependent upon the Company's stock price at the time of award and going forward.

The Company compensates its named executive officers in these different ways in order to achieve different goals. Cash compensation, for example, provides the named executive officers with a guaranteed minimum base salary. The Company fixes the base salary of each named executive officer at a level that the Company believes enables it to hire and retain individuals in a competitive environment and rewards successful individual performance and a successful level of contribution to the Company's overall business goals. The Company also takes into account the base salaries paid by similarly-situated companies and the base salaries of other private and public companies, with which the Company believes it competes for talent. However, the Company does not formally benchmark base salaries paid to the named executive officers against the executive compensation of any other particular company or competitive peer group of companies.

Annual incentive bonus compensation is generally linked to the achievement of short-term operational, strategic or financial objectives, and is intended to reward the named executive officers for their performance in reaching goals that are agreed in advance between management and the Compensation Committee. The Company designs the cash incentive bonuses for each named executive officer to focus the named executive officer on achieving key objectives within a fiscal year, as described in more detail below. The Company has and may continue in the future to make such bonus payments in cash and stock awards.

Grants of incentive stock options are intended to link the named executive officers' longer-term compensation with the performance of the Company which has a strong correlation to the value of the Company's stock, which is consistent with enhancing stockholder value. This encourages the named executive officers to remain with the Company, to act in ways intended to maximize stockholder value, and to reduce or eliminate the value of their incentive stock options if the Company stock fails to perform. These grants are intended to produce significant value for each named executive officer, if the Company achieves its goals and if the named executive officer remains with the Company, provided that certain grants of incentive stock options provide for accelerated vesting under certain circumstances.

The Company views the three components of named executive officer compensation as related, but distinct. Although the Compensation Committee does review total compensation, the Company does not believe that compensation derived from one component of compensation should negate or reduce compensation from other components. The Company determines the appropriate level for each compensation component based in part, but not exclusively, on its view of internal equity and consistency, individual performance and other information the Company deems relevant. Except as described below, the Compensation Committee has not adopted any formal or informal policies or guidelines for allocating compensation between long-term and currently paid-out compensation, between cash and non-cash compensation, or among different forms of compensation. This is due to the small size of the named executive officer team and the need to tailor each named executive officer's award to attract and retain that named executive officer.

In addition, the Company provides the named executive officers with benefits that are generally available to the Company's salaried employees.

The Compensation Committee performs an annual review of the Company's named executive officers' cash compensation and incentive stock option holdings to determine whether they provide competitive compensation for the services they perform, as well as adequate incentives and motivation to the named executive officers and whether they adequately compensate the named executive officers relative to comparable officers in other companies. The Compensation Committee's most recent review occurred in May 2018.

For compensation decisions, including decisions regarding the grant of equity compensation relating to named executive officers, the Compensation Committee typically considers the recommendations of the Chief Executive Officer and the Chairman of the Board.

The Company accounts for the equity compensation expense for its employees under the rules of ASC 718, which requires the Company to estimate and record an expense for each award of equity compensation over the service period of the award. Accounting rules also require the Company to record cash compensation as an expense at the time the obligation is accrued. The Company structures cash incentive bonus compensation so that it is taxable to Company employees at the time it is paid to them. It is not anticipated that the deduction of any compensation paid to any named executive officer will be limited by Section 162(m) of the Internal Revenue Code.

Compensation Policies and Practices as They Relate to Risk Management

In fiscal 2018, the Compensation Committee reviewed the Company's compensation policies and practices and concluded that the mix and design of these policies and practices are not reasonably likely to encourage the Company's employees to take excessive risks, and that the Company's compensation policies and practices are not reasonably likely to have a material adverse effect on the Company. In connection with its evaluation, the Compensation Committee considered, among other things, the structure, philosophy and design characteristics of the Company's primary incentive compensation plans and programs in light of the Company's risk management and governance procedures, as well as other factors that may calibrate or balance potential risk-taking incentives. In particular, the Compensation Committee reviewed the Company's compensation programs for certain design features that have been identified by experts as having the potential to encourage excessive risk-taking, including long term incentive compensation value that is driven entirely by increases in stock price, and low compensation levels exacerbated by performance-driven awards not paying out; including both annual bonus and long term incentive compensation, and noted that these are not substantial factors in the Company's executives' compensation packages.

Equity Compensation

At the May 2018 meetings of the Compensation Committee, the Compensation Committee analyzed the current incentive stock option holdings of the Company's named executive officers and others, and determined that the level of equity stake of the named executive officers was at market for companies of similar size and experience as a public company.

The Company does not have any program, plan or obligation that requires the Company to grant equity compensation to any named executive officer on specified dates. The authority to make equity grants to named executive officers rests with the Company's Compensation Committee, although, as noted above, the Compensation Committee does consider the recommendations of the Chief Executive Officer in setting the compensation of the other named executive officers.

Annual Incentive Bonuses

Annual cash incentive bonuses for the named executive officers are established as part of their respective individual employment agreements. Each of these employment agreements provides that the named executive officer is eligible to receive an annual incentive bonus in an amount determined in the discretion of the Board, with a maximum bonus amount specified for each named executive officer in their respective employment agreements.

The actual amount of each bonus is based upon the Compensation Committee's subjective determination of each executive officer's performance and contribution towards satisfying predetermined individual performance and corporate objectives. The corporate objectives are established in the discretion of the Compensation Committee on a yearly basis. Based on the Company's status as a non-revenue generating biotechnology company, examples of the individual performance and corporate objectives used by the Compensation Committee in its determination of whether to award an annual incentive bonus include, among others, trial enrollment and timelines with the FDA, financing, timely SEC filing and reporting, management, leadership and maintaining stockholder relationships.

Each named executive officer's level of achievement of the individual performance and corporate performance objectives are determined by the Compensation Committee with the input of each named executive officer. The annual bonuses paid to the Company's named executive officers, if such is awarded, are payable in cash, or, in the discretion of the Compensation Committee, 50% in cash and 50% in unrestricted shares of Common Stock, subject to the availability of shares under the 2012 Equity Compensation Plan, as amended. The maximum cash incentive bonus amount for each of the Company's named executive officers is as follows:

Name of Named Executive		Minimum	Maximum Bonus
Officer	Title	Bonus
Nader Pourhassan, Ph.D.	President and Chief Executive Officer	None	100% of annual base salary
Michael D. Mulholland	Chief Financial Officer	None	50% of annual base salary
Anthony D. Caracciolo*	Chairman of the Board	None	N/A

* Resigned as Executive Chairman as of July 11, 2018

In addition to the Annual Incentive Bonus, the Chief Executive Officer is also eligible to receive a supplemental bonus. Whether the Chief Executive Officer is awarded a supplemental bonus, and the amount of any such supplemental bonus, is in the sole discretion of the Board. When determining whether or not to grant a supplemental bonus for a fiscal year, the Board may, but is not be required to, consider any unanticipated achievement of corporate objectives for such fiscal year.

The Company's named executive officers were eligible to receive annual incentive bonuses for services during fiscal 2018. The maximum target bonus amounts were based on the named executive officer's base salary and were set by the named executive officer's employment agreement, as follows: Dr. Pourhassan, 100% of base salary, or $433,888, and Mr. Mulholland, 50% of base salary, or $173,813. Mr. Caracciolo was not eligible to receive an annual incentive bonus for fiscal year 2018.

Upon the Compensation Committee's review of the Company's and each named executive officer's performance against the predetermined individual corporate objectives during fiscal 2018, the Compensation Committee determined to award Dr. Pourhassan $216,944, and to award Mr. Mulholland $147,741. No annual incentive bonus was paid to Mr. Caracciolo for fiscal year 2018.

An executive must remain employed by the Company through the date of the Committee's determination of performance to be eligible to receive annual incentive payouts. The cash component of the incentive compensation will be paid upon the improved liquidity of the Company.

The actual value of such incentive payouts are shown in the Bonus column in the Summary Compensation Table below.

Perquisites

The Company's use of perquisites as an element of compensation is very limited and is largely based on historical practices and policies of the Company. The Company does not view perquisites as a significant element of the Company's comprehensive compensation structure, and while the Company believes that they can be used in conjunction with base salary to attract, motivate and retain individuals in a competitive environment, the Company is careful to review them periodically and to keep them at the lowest level possible consistent with industry practice.

Effect of Stockholder Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

Of the 76,703,357 shares that voted (this number excludes the 1,614,021 shares that abstained from voting and 30,606,699 broker non-votes) on the advisory vote on executive compensation at the 2017 Annual Meeting, approximately 79% of the shares that voted approved of the Company's executive compensation policies and decisions. The Company has considered the results of this vote. From 2017 to 2018, the total amount of compensation paid to the Company's executive officers increased by approximately 3.6%. The Compensation Committee and entire Board intend to continue careful review of the compensation programs and policies to assure that the compensation remains consistent with the Company's philosophy and objectives as stated above and reflective of the Company's financial performance.
