the Company would pay Mr. Whiteside, as severance, one year's base salary. Mr. Whiteside agreed that for a period of one year following the date of his termination of employment, that he will not (i) solicit, hire, contract, engage, retain, divert, induce or accept business from or otherwise take away or interfere with any current customer of the Company (or any subsidiaries or affiliates thereof) or any prospective customer with which the Company (or any subsidiaries or affiliates thereof) has targeted for new business and has had a substantial business contact in the past 12 months and for which Mr. Whiteside has knowledge of such business contact, in each case for the purpose of providing the same or similar services or goods as that of the Company (or any subsidiaries or affiliates thereof), and (ii) (a) solicit, divert or induce any of the current employees or consultants of the Company (or any subsidiaries or affiliates thereof) to leave or to work for Mr. Whiteside or any person or entity with which Mr. Whiteside is affiliated or (b) hire directly any current employees of the Company (or any subsidiaries or affiliates thereof) (it being agreed that this restriction does not prohibit an entity other than one controlled by Mr. Whiteside to hire such employees) or (c) supply information to an employer of Mr. Whiteside or another unaffiliated third party to assist such employer or other third party to do indirectly what Mr. Whiteside is restricted from doing pursuant to this letter agreement. Both the Company and Mr. Whiteside entered into a mutual release of claims and the Employee Severance and Restrictive Covenant Agreement that was entered into by the Company and Mr. Whiteside dated September 30, 2004 was terminated.
