The following is the transcript of a speech made by Reto Francioni, Chief Executive Officer of Deutsche Börse, to employees of Deutsche Börse on July 18, 2011.

Dear Employees,

As you may have heard, we have reached a key milestone on the way to the merger of Deutsche Börse and NYSE Euronext.

First of all, the shareholders of Deutsche Börse AG voted 82.4 percent in favor of the merger and have tendered their shares. This is great news and a historic day for our company!

The shareholders of NYSE Euronext have voted more than 65 percent in favor a week before.

This brings us far closer to our goal of creating the premier global exchange group together with our American partners. I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank you, the workforce, once again for your dedicated hard work.

My thanks likewise go to the members of our project team for their tireless commitment. All others I would like to thank for continuing with their excellent work in the operating business. I have been fortunate to receive many helpful ideas and suggestions, both in personal discussions and in writing. And, last but not least, my special thanks go to our partners at NYSE Euronext for cooperating so well with us, as well as for the tremendous trust and confidence they have shown in the past few months.

So have we reached our goal?

We've made a major step forward! The capital markets - the shareholders - on both sides of the Atlantic have given their vote, and it couldn't have been more clear! We have a clear mandate now and we know exactly what the expectations are. And we as a team will fulfill them, I'm absolutely sure about that!

Of course, there is still a fair stretch to go. The next major milestone is marked by the upcoming discussions with regulators. The European Union's merger review is currently expected to last until year-end. Also the State of Hesse Ministry of Economics still has to authorize the transaction. Finally, approval is also pending from the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

At least of equal interest to you is another key marker: the future name of today's Alpha Beta Holding. On this point, too, a decision is still pending. We have narrowed down the choice of names to a small number of alternatives. The final decision will be made in a few months.

Let us take a step back: When NYSE Euronext's Chief Executive Duncan Niederauer and I presented the planned merger to the public on February 15, we spoke of a historic transaction offering great advantages to both sides. We also said it was to the benefit of the Frankfurt and New York financial centers.

In the months that followed, we saw our arguments fall on fruitful soil. We met with a wave of approval, from you, the employees, investors, media and policymakers alike.

The ideal strategic fit in the combination and the trusting working relationship with our partners also gave us support when it came to repelling an attempt to obstruct the merger. Both companies' investors have now confirmed to us that they likewise see the advantages we stated. So it is no exaggeration to say the logic of the partnership is bearing fruit and the power of a strong argument is winning the day.

With that in mind, allow me to spell out the strategic logic once again: Together with our partner NYSE Euronext, we are creating:

- A world market leader in derivatives and risk management
- The world's largest and best known cash equities market
- The leading provider of market data and technology services
- And the global pioneer in post-trade infrastructure and settlement

This delivers benefits for all sides:

Especially you, our employees, will gain enhanced career opportunities at all locations of the new stock exchange group. You will all have a great chance in the future to be part of the radical transformation of an entire industry. Customers, intermediaries and issuers gain, among other things, deeper, more liquid and more transparent markets and improved global connectivity. Shareholders benefit from scale economies and a diversified platform with many services. Even stronger emphasis than ever before will be placed on attractive, fast-growth businesses like derivatives trading. And thanks to the considerable synergies, the new company will deliver superior added value, especially on the basis of operating costs.

So what happens next? While we are all hopeful that the various regulators will approve the merger, for the time being at least we must live with a period of uncertainty. That means we are still unable to say anything about the long-term lineup. I trust you will appreciate if, for this reason, we are unable to answer one or another question of personal importance to you.

Yet the short-term situation in no way detracts from the outstanding prospects for the future we have carved out in the last few months. I am proud of this accomplishment, which shows once again the huge potential there is within this company. And we are only just getting started. Together with NYSE Euronext, we can create a global stock exchange organization with great growth potential for all concerned.

Let's continue working toward our shared goal with the same dedication as ever in the months ahead.

Thank you and have a good time!
