On May 19, 2011, Elyse Douglas, Hertz's Chief Financial Officer, gave a presentation at the UBS Leveraged Finance Conference. Below are excerpts from the transcription of the conference related to Hertz's proposed acquisition of Dollar Thrifty:

Unidentified Participant

Can you please update us on the status of your bid for Thrifty?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

Oh, our bid for Dollar Thrifty. There's really no change. We're out there with our offer, and we're doing exactly what we said we were going to do, which is really working with the FTC to come to closure so that we can get our consent decree in hand. So really no new updates.

Unidentified Participant

Elyse, could you just talk about what the FTC could require you to do in addition to selling the Advantage brand?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

Sure. I think there's been some confusion about this so let me just clarify. We've been in discussions. We were pretty far down the road back in September when we went for the shareholder vote. We've continued our discussions. We know what's required is for us to sell Advantage, and to sell it to an individual who has the ability to compete in the marketplace. So the FTC will be looking for a sale of Advantage plus some additional counter space basically to the Advantage buyer, because the issue with the FTC is they want to make sure that the buyer of Advantage has a critical mass of business to be able to compete. So what we'll be required to divest will be Advantage plus we may have to give some counter space to the buyer of Advantage, as well.

Unidentified Participant

Just curious if you could help me understand, the counter space that you would give up, how would that impact your business? Do you expect to go get additional counter space?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

You know, it really would vary by the specific airport. So, for instance, there may be an airport where Dollar and Thrifty have separate counters. We could potentially give up a counter and dual brand another. It could be a situation where we don't have that flexibility and we'd have to give up a counter, but it doesn't mean we couldn't open up an off airport location. So there's lots of variations and it really is going to depend airport-by-airport.

Unidentified Participant

I guess I'm trying to understand what the logic is of the additional counter space. Is it because Advantage doesn't have any space at all at the airport? What's the logic?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

It would be a situation where they're not at the airport today.

Unidentified Participant

How many of those are there?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

That's a negotiation with the FTC.

Unidentified Participant

No, I mean for the company now, how many of the Advantage sites now don't have airport exposure?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

About half of our locations today are off airport. About half on airport, half off airport.

Unidentified Participant

So the worst case scenario would be you'd have to give up half of your Advantage sites that don't have counter space, you'd have to give them counter space?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

I don't think it's that much.

Leslie Hunziker - HERTZ CORP - VP IR

Keep in mind all of the space that we have today will be divested. We'll be giving it all up. The additional is, what she's saying is, where we have a planned rollout in the future to open locations, if we need to help the buyer of Advantage get onto those locations as a new brand in those locations.

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

And they're not looking at every off airport and saying you have to be on airport, that's not what they're saying. They're saying, in addition to what your footprint looks like today, there may be some key markets where we think you need to have an airport presence. So it's not all of them.

Unidentified Participant

And then the last one was, given how far along you were back then, do you feel like you now are starting where you left off or are you starting from scratch?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

Pretty much. Yeah, I think were pretty much caught up to where we were back in September.

Unidentified Participant

Now back then if I vaguely remember, you were close to, in your mind, close to being done because you were looking to have the bid done and executed. So does that mean you're within a couple month period now?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

Back in September what we really needed to do was find a buyer for Advantage, and that is exactly what we are doing right now is finding a buyer for Advantage.

Unidentified Participant

And you think that process . . . (Inaudible)

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

You know, we think we can get this done probably as early as July or as late as September, that's kind of the window we're focused on.

Unidentified Participant

Elyse, you talked about the transaction as it's currently offered being credit neutral to slightly credit positive. I think most of the market would expect Avis to come back with a bid. Is there a scenario where you envision this not being credit neutral and how do you think the rating agencies would react in that scenario?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

We've obviously talked to the ratings agencies. They do have us on negative watch, but that's really more . . . . They really have to do that until the situation gets resolved. We don't believe, certainly the transaction as it's structured today, we don't think we have an issue, we think its credit neutral and clearly credit positive when you factor in the potential synergies. Our goal is for this transaction to be credit neutral, and if it's not credit neutral out of the box it would be credit neutral in a reasonably short period of time, say 12 months. And we obviously have some flexibility in terms of how we structure the deal. So our goal is to be credit neutral, worst case within a 12 month period, and we think that will preserve the ratings.

Unidentified Participant

What would your risk fleet look like pro forma? What percent would be risk fleet if the transaction goes through?

Elyse Douglas - HERTZ CORP - CFO

What would our percentage of risk fleet be if we bought Dollar Thrifty? It would probably be a little bit higher.

Dollar Thrifty has a 95% risk fleet, they have about 100,000 cars, we have about 400,000 cars, so it might be slightly higher than where we are today. But we are certainly very comfortable with a higher risk fleet, as I mentioned.
