to major ingredients, energy, fuel and transportation. Although the Company has taken action and implemented programs, including price increases, to recover these cost increases and restore margins, the Company's first quarter 2006 results only partially benefited from these initiatives. First quarter results were aided by decreased interest expense and increased investment income. The Company's per share earnings also benefited from common stock purchases in the open market in 2005 and 2006 and resulting fewer shares outstanding."
